Green Peas in Ramekins

By Constance Clarke.

One of the delicacies of spring is green peas, and they are particularly delicious when cooked in this manner: Take a quart of shelled young, freshly gathered peas and put them into a clean stewpan with four tablespoonfuls of butter, a sprig of fresh parsley, two finely chopped onions and a sprig of fresh mint, tie these together in a piece of muslin. Take the heart of a nice, fresh, well washed and dried crisp lettuce, cut it into fine shreds, sprinkle this in with the peas, season with a pinch of salt, a dust of white pepper, and a pinch of sugar; put the cover on the pan and let the contents simmer for about half an hour, during which time they require to be occasionally shaken. While tender, remove the herbs in the muslin, then take half an ounce of fine sifted flour and mix into it four tablespoonfuls of thick cream and let the contents boil for a few minutes; then put the peas in little ramekin dishes, pour the cream over, and sprinkle the top with fresh bread crumbs and pieces of butter; put into the oven to brown, take out and serve while hot for a dressed vegetable, or they can be served for a luncheon dish.

BETTER RATIONS RAISES
BUTTER FAT PRODUCTION

Forty cows owned by members of the St. Joseph County Cow Testing association have been placed on the honor list this month as compared with 22 in the previous month and 19 in April, according to the report of W. T. Roberts, the official cow tester. During the month 11 cows produced over 50 pounds of butter fat and 29 produced over 40 pounds. Last month 32 cows produced over 40 pounds, one producing over 60 pounds and six over 50 pounds. According to Mr. Roberts' report, this increase in the amount of butter fat produced is due to feeding better rations to the cows. Members of the association exchange ideas on the best feed and cooperate in their buying.
